

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Looking for jobs can be a long process!

Learning Outcome

Discuss factual and abstract information about common everyday or job related topics in both work and social contexts appropriate for the interlocutor.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about actions related to job postings.
- I can express necessity, duty, and advice.
- I can express my work responsibilities.

Ask your partner:

- How often do you look at job postings?
- Do you think they are a good resource when it comes to looking for jobs? Why or why not?

Let's Explore!

Let's take a look at the job posting that Boris gave Kristi and Adam. What are the qualifications listed?

* "Qualifications" are skills, personal qualities, or experiences you have that make you suitable for a particular job or position.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

POSITION: Junior Editor

BFP Publishing, a dynamic and rapidly-growing firm located in Boston, MA, will be hiring a full-time Junior Editor. In this position, the right candidate will have strong potential to move up to a Senior Editor position.

General qualifications:

Motivated, self-starter; Has to possess strong writing skills; Excellent communication skills; BA degree; Superior attention to detail and strong follow-up skills; Needs to demonstrate a proven ability to work both collaboratively on a team and independently and autonomously; Should be eager to grow and learn in the position; Ability to accept and make use of constructive feedback; Flexibility; Must be punctual and respect all deadlines; Self-discipline and strong work ethic; Ought to possess an ability to work in a busy work environment while remaining attentive to detail; Must be able to prioritize, be organized, and meet all project organizational deadlines.

Requirements specific to the position:

Have an eye for good storytelling and an inherent understanding of grammatical structure; Be able at times to work independently and in collaboration with printers, publishers and assistant editors when necessary; Needs to have a minimum of one year professional experience with inEffects, inPrinting, and inPremiere; Experience with learning management systems, a plus; Comfortable with different operating systems; Interest in learning new software and staying current with technological changes in the industry; Willingness to work long hours as needed to meet delivery deadlines; Willingness to proofread and make changes as much as is required.

Duties and responsibilities include:

Editing copy, working either independently or with an editor, depending on the project; Preparing project elements, outputs and deliverables; Screening of quality control materials; Preparing text for transcription; Managing text archive.

Please send cv to: bobbykpl@BFPPublishing.com

Let's Practice!

Kristi reviews the details of the job.

Instructions: Read the text on page 2 again. Select the correct option for each question.

1. What does a candidate need to understand?
 - a. How to be a self-starter.
 - b. How software works.
 - c. How storytelling and drama are structured.
 - d. How to use all operating systems.
2. What does the candidate need to be able to do?
 - a. Work alone and in collaboration with other people.
 - b. Speak more than one language.
 - c. Create learning management software.
 - d. Work overtime.
3. What does the candidate need to have?
 - a. A background in working collaboratively.
 - b. Previous work experience using software.
 - c. Experience proofreading and making changes.
 - d. A degree in dramatic arts.
4. What would be good for a candidate to have, but may not be necessary?
 - a. Strong writing and communication skills.
 - b. Bachelor of Arts degree.
 - c. Ability to meet deadlines and produce deliverables.
 - d. Experience using learning management systems.
5. What should a candidate be interested in?
 - a. Learning to use new software.
 - b. Giving constructive feedback.
 - c. Participating in recreational activities.
 - d. Screening of quality control materials.

Let's Practice!

Kristi describes the job posting to another person.

Instructions: Proofread the sentences. Circle the incorrect verbs. Write the verbs correctly. Use gerunds.

1. The candidate ought to possess an ability to work in a busy work environment while maintain attention to detail. _____
2. The person should have an interest in learn new software and stay current with technological changes in the industry is required. _____
3. Tasks include edit copy, work either independently or with an editor and screen of quality control materials. _____
4. The position involves prepare project elements, outputs and deliverables, and manage text archive. _____

Extension Activity

Find job postings online.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Go on the Internet. Look for job postings for a specific job that you are interested in.
- Write a report summarizing the job postings. What do they all have in common? What are some of the differences? Remember to refer to different parts of the job posting.
- Proofread your summary.
- Read it aloud to a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I identify and read through job postings online.

☐ ☐

I identify the different elements of a job posting.

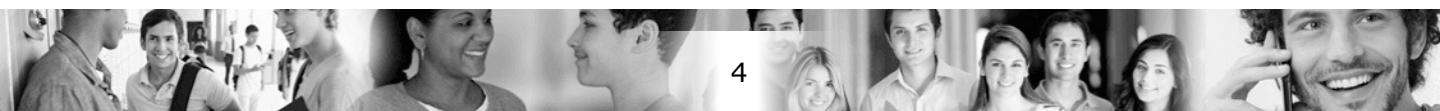

☐ ☐

I write about actions related to job postings.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- operating system (noun): a system in a computer that helps all the programs in it to work together
e.g. Are you comfortable working with different operating systems?
- transcription (noun): when a piece of writing has been changed into the alphabet of another language e.g. You need to prepare all text for transcription.
- deliverable (noun): something that a business has promised to have ready for a client
e.g. You have to prepare outputs and deliverables.
- constructive feedback (noun): the act of telling someone an area in which their performance could improve e.g. You should have the ability to accept and make use of constructive feedback.
- self-discipline (noun): the ability to make yourself do the things you know you ought to do, without someone making you do them e.g. Self-discipline and strong work ethic are qualifications we look for.
- collaboratively (adverb): done through collaboration e.g. You need to demonstrate a proven ability to work collaboratively both on a team and independently and autonomously.
- inherent (adjective): something is a natural part of something and cannot be separated from it e.g. With an inherent understanding of grammatical structure, the candidate must be able to work independently.
- self-starter (noun): someone who is able to work successfully on their own without needing other people's help or a lot of instructions e.g. We are looking for a motivated self-starter.
- in collaboration with (expression): working with two or more people to create or achieve the same thing
e.g. You must be able to work independently and in collaboration with printers, publishers and assistant editors.

Learning Points

Modals for Expressing Necessity, Duty and Advice

You use modals to express necessity, duty and advice. These are especially useful in a workplace setting.

You use the modal must to express obligation, or a duty. The speaker has decided that something must be done.

You must submit your work by next week.

I must submit my work by next week. (I have decided)

You can also use the modal have to to express an obligation or a duty.

I have to complete this article by next week.

You have to complete this article by next week

You use the modals should/ought to to express strong advice or duty to do something.

You should work hard to finish this work by next week. (advice)

You ought to finish this work by next week. (it's your duty)

You use need to refer to things that are necessary. You use the infinitive after the verb need.

You need to finish the work by next week.

Examples:

- You must be able to prioritize, be organized and meet all project organizational deadlines.
- You have to possess strong writing skills.
- You should be eager to grow and learn within the position.
- You ought to possess an ability to work in a busy work environment.
- You need to have a minimum one year professional experience.

Learning Points

How to Write a Job Post

A job post is a posting (online or in print) that an employer writes to attract new employees to an available position at their company. If you were to write a job post on behalf of your employer, these are some things to keep in mind.

The Title: This is most of the name of the position (Junior Editor)

Company Information: Include a blurb about what the company is and what they have to offer. Making the company stand out from others will attract a variety of applicants.

Qualifications: List the necessary qualifications and experience that you would like your candidates to have. Specify the skills and attributes they must possess.

Duties: Be specific about what the position involves. That way, you can be sure you are reaching all the best qualified candidates.

Make sure you leave sufficient contact information and/or be clear about how you want the candidates to send their application.

