Let's Start!

What a disaster!

Learning Outcome

Discuss factual and abstract information about common everyday or job related topics in both work and social contexts appropriate for the interlocutor.

Ask your partner:

- What do you do when you're stuck in a problem?
- How do you solve it?

Can Do Statements

- I can explain misfortunate events or things that have happened in the workplace.
- I can request or report facts about events or actions related to work issues.
- I can talk about solving problems.

Let's Explore!

Adam tells his friend about what happened. What was nowhere to be found?

* "Nowhere to be found" means something is lost.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Hayley: Adam! How was the interview with the author?
Adam: It was a disaster! It was as disastrous as that time you had me help you with that art assignment.
Hayley: What happened?
Adam: I got in my car this morning and realized I was running low on gas! The tank had to be filled up. Anyways, I get to the gas station. I had the attendant pump my gas, paid and was on my way to meet the author.
Hayley: What time was your interview?
Adam: 10 a.m. but ... I didn't get there till 11. The author had me wait for 30 minutes. As I was waiting to be called in, I looked through my bag to make sure I had everything. I realized my notepad was nowhere to be found and I needed it!
Hayley: What did you do?
Adam: I had the receptionist lend me a notebook. That was embarrassing!
Hayley: Jeez. What happened after?
Adam: I went in, apologized for my tardiness and we started.
Hayley: How was it?
Adam: It was going well until the end. I had finished up the interview. As I was extending my hand out for a handshake, I knocked over a mug and spilt coffee all over the carpet.
Hayley: You didn't?
Adam: Yep. Mr. Duncan kept insisting it was fine but that carpet definitely needs to be cleaned.
Hayley: Oh Adam.
Adam: Then, I got to the office and was about to start writing my bio, only to realize my notes had vanished. I couldn't find them anywhere and the article had to be completed and handed in by tomorrow.
Hayley: So what did you do?
Adam: I got Mr. Brody to give me an extra day but he didn't seem pleased, so I started to panic and did something horrible.
Hayley: What?
Adam: I got Kristi to give me her laptop and when she stepped out ... I copied her notes.

Learning Points

Infinitives in the Passive

You form the passive infinitive of verbs by putting to be in front of the past participle.

Look at the chart for a comparison of active and passive forms of the infinitive:

Active	Passive
There's so much to do.	There's so much to be done.
I'm going to do it by Friday.	It's going to be done by Friday.
I had to fill up the tank.	The tank had to be filled up.
I had to find my notepad!	My notepad was nowhere to be found and I needed it!
He needs to clean the carpet.	That carpet definitely needs to be cleaned.

Learning Points

The Causative - get/have

You use a causative verb when you want to talk about something that someone else did for you or for another person. The subject caused the action to happen. They didn't do it themselves.

You use the causative verbs get/have when you want to make it clear that the subject paid, asked, or persuaded the other person to do something.

For example:

Have your spouse or housemates clean up after themselves.

In this sentence you ask or persuade your spouse to clean up after themselves.

The structure of the causative is:

have + object + verb

Have someone remind everyone.

Or: subject + get + object + Infinitive

Get everyone to choose their favorite music to play.

Sometimes, you use get when you want to convey the feeling that you need to convince someone to do something. Have is a little more neutral.

Examples:

- You had me help you with that art assignment.
- I had the attendant pump my gas.
- I got Mr. Brody to give me an extra day.
- I got her to lend me her laptop.
