

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Giving praise to employees ... that's a great idea!

Learning Outcome

Discuss factual and abstract information about common everyday or job related topics in both work and social contexts appropriate for the interlocutor.

Can Do Statements

- I can praise and congratulate someone.
- I can request or report facts about events or actions.
- I can use character traits.

Ask your partner:

- What do you say when you want to give praise to someone for doing a good job?
- Do you think it's important to give people praise? Why or why not?

Let's Explore!

Mr. Brody is pleased with Adam and Kristi's work!

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Boris: Kristi and Adam, I read through your assignments, which were very well written. I'm very pleased. Congratulations!
- Adam: Really? Phew, I thought I blew it!
- Boris: Adam, if I wasn't confident in your abilities, I wouldn't have hired you. You're more than capable.
- Adam: Thanks, Boris.
- Boris: Keep up the good work. Kristi, you also did a fantastic job. I read your biography twice, it was incredibly well-written.
- Kristi: Thank you. That means a lot.
- Boris: It's refreshing to see some young talent around the office.
- Adam: Boris, who is usually ill-mannered and sharp-tongued, is being rather sentimental today, wouldn't you agree?
- Kristi: You're going to get us in trouble! You know that Boris, whose mood I don't want to spoil today, doesn't like to be interrupted while he's talking.
- Adam: He's not even looking at us! Let alone paying attention to us!
- Kristi: Your deduction skills are excellent, Adam! Well done!
- Boris: Ms. Lenard, pay attention please. Now, I wanted to mention that there's a position within the company that's opened up.
- Kristi: What is it?
- Boris: It's a role which includes more responsibilities than your current position. Both of you are qualified and would do well. Essentially, the candidate we hire should be analytical and diligent.
- Adam: You mean someone who's a perfectionist? Kristi that sounds just like you! You've got to apply!
- Kristi: Very funny, Adam.
- Boris: Like I said, it's a position either of you would fare well in. You two are potential and strong candidates. I think you should both apply. Perhaps, I may even put in a good word. Here's a copy of the job description. Have a look.

Let's Practice!

Mr. Brody congratulates Adam and Kristi. Kristi congratulates Adam.

Instructions: Complete the sentences below by choosing from the options you are given.

1. Boris: Kristi and Adam, I am very _____ with your work.
a. pleasing
b. please
c. pleased
2. _____!
a. Congratulations
b. Gratulation
c. Salutations
3. _____ the good work.
a. Put up
b. Keep up
c. Send up
4. You did a _____ job!
a. fantasy
b. fatalistic
c. fantastic
5. Kristi: Adam, your deduction skills are excellent! _____!
a. Good done
b. Well do
c. Well done

Let's Practice!

How would you describe the people in your office?

Instructions: Use the words from the Word Bank to correctly complete the sentences. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

Word Bank

ill-mannered / sharp-tongued / sentimental / capable / analytical / diligent / perfectionist

1. Someone who works hard and is careful is _____
2. Someone who has the ability to do something is _____
3. Someone who is not polite is _____
4. Someone who is not satisfied unless something is perfect is a _____
5. Someone who says things in an unfriendly way is _____
6. Someone who thinks about things in a detailed way is _____
7. Someone who is easily affected by emotions is _____

Extension Activity

Think of the people in your life.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Look at the chart below. For each of the words, write down someone in your life that reminds you of that word. Write down reasons why.
- Once you have filled in your chart, use the information to write a paragraph. Remember to include an introductory sentence as well as a concluding sentence.
- Proofread your paragraph and practice reading it aloud.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I connect adjectives with people in my life.

☐ ☐

I write about people in my life.

☐ ☐

I talk about different people in my life and their character.

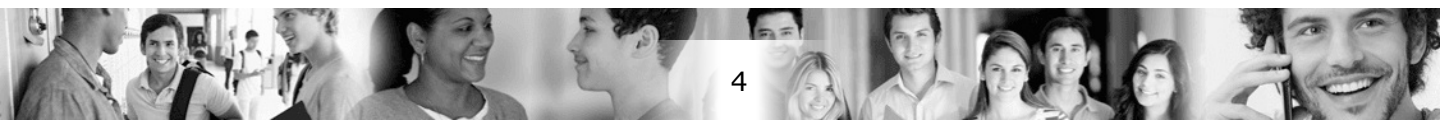

☐ ☐

Noun/Adjective	Person	Reasons
perfectionist sentimental analytical diligent ill-mannered
sharp-tongued

Target Words

- capable (adjective): having the qualities or ability needed to do something e.g. You are more than capable of doing the job.
- ill-mannered (adjective): someone who is not polite
e.g. Don't be so ill-mannered.
- sharp-tongued (adjective): someone who says things in an unfriendly way which often upsets people e.g. I'm surprised because he's never this nice, he's usually sharp-tongued.
- sentimental (adjective): someone who is easily affected by emotions
e.g. He is being rather sentimental today.
- analytical (adjective): someone who thinks about things in a detailed and intelligent way e.g. We are looking for someone who is analytical.
- diligent (adjective): someone who works hard and is careful and thorough e.g. Essentially, the candidate that we hire should be analytical and diligent.
- perfectionist (noun): someone who is not satisfied with anything unless it is completely perfect
e.g. Do you know someone who's a perfectionist?

Learning Points

Subject and Object Relative Clauses

You can use relative clauses to give more information about a noun. These are sometimes called adjective clauses as well.

A relative clause is a dependent clause and cannot be a complete sentence by itself.

There are two different types of Relative Clauses:

1. Defining Relative Clause: this contains information that is necessary to define or identify which particular noun you are talking about. You don't use commas with defining relative clauses:

I asked the same question to my friend who I think is a great source of knowledge.

If you don't say "who I think is a great source of knowledge", then we don't know which friend you are talking about.

2. Non-Defining Relative Clause: you use this to add extra information about a noun. This is not necessary to identify the noun. You need to put commas with non-defining relative clauses.

My friends just got back from a camping trip, which they said was awesome.

It is clear which camping trip you mean, so "which they said was awesome" is extra information.

Examples:

- I read through your assignments, which were very well-written, and am very pleased.
- Your biography, which I read twice, was well-written.
- It's a role, which includes more responsibilities than your current position, both of you are qualified for and would do well in.
- I think you two, who are potential and strong candidates, should both apply.
- The person who interviewed me was extremely professional.

Learning Points

Expressions to Praise and Congratulate Someone

In a work environment, there may be times when you are obligated to praise someone for a job well done or to congratulate them on an accomplishment.

Look at the chart for some ways to express yourself:

Expressions of Praise	Expressions of Congratulations
Keep up the good work! You did a fantastic job. It's refreshing to see ... Well done! I'm very pleased with ...	Congratulations! Hooray for you! Hats off to you!

Examples:

- I read your assignments, which were very well written. I'm very pleased. Congratulations!
- Keep up the good work. Kristi, you did a fantastic job.
- Your deduction skills are excellent, Adam! Well done!
- It's refreshing to see some young talent around the office.

